The way Towns Spring up in the West—
Fourth of July Celebration—Crops.
MACON CITY, Mo., July 10, 1888.
It was stated in a former letter that "Hudson
City is another town, laid off immediately adjoining Macon City, on the west, a street only dividing the two towns."
With your kind permission, I will give brief description of this new place. It is pleasantly situated, partly on the prairie and partly in the timber. The Hannibal and St. Joseph railroad runs nearly through the center of the place east and west, and the general opinion is that the North Missouri railroad will run through its center north and south. It is not yet precisely known where the depot of either road will

The public sale of lots came off on the fourth of July last, a year ago. There were about one hundred and thirty lots sold, at prices ranging from forty-five dollars to three hundred and thirty dollars per lot. These sales, together with the sales that have been made since

With the sales that have been effected since, amount to over forty thousand dollars. Building was commenced here some time last fall. Now there are about seventy houses, including all sorts up, or in process of erection. There are some thirty-five or six houses occupied as dwellings; eight or nine business houses are going up, two drinking saloons, a tailor shop and livery stable now in operation, one three-story hotel, eighty by ninety-two feet. Three of the store-rooms spoken of above are in the basement of this building; a two-story school house, intended also to be occupied temporarily as a church by the several denominations, now up and inclosed. This building is immediately on the line between the two towns, making it convenient to all. On the 25th of last month this building was struck by lightning, the electric fluid taking effect in the northwest corner post, shivering it from top to bottom, and

The post office is kept on the line of the two towns, but just on the Hudson side. These two towns may be said to be one and the same, having the same interests and same advantages. The population of these places probably reaches

Under the new lettings we have a daily mail by the Hannibal and St. Joseph railroad, a tri-weekly stage line from this place to Mexico, on the Missouri river, a bi-weekly two-horse hack line from Kirksville, via Bloomington, to Macon city, and a bi-weekly from here to Paris, carried on horseback.

Independence was celebrated at this place on the 3d. The Declaration of Independence was read by Geo. S. Palmer, Attorney-at-law, of this place. The oration was delivered by — Bevier, Attorney-at-law, of Bloomington. He was very happy in manner and matter. The audience was addressed, also, by G. S. Palmer, Esq., and Judge Wm. S. Fox. The Bloomington Saxhorn Band was in attendance, and discoursed to the multitude their epochal music.

A free dinner was served, after which the young people and others enjoyed themselves in tripping "the light fantastic toe" to the merry strains of the violin in an arbor prepared for the purpose. Everything passed off quietly and with good cheer. There probably were about eighteen hundred or two thousand persons present.

and rust and seab almost entirely ruined spring wheat. Oats, particularly low crops, are ruined by rust also. Corn looks well—growing very rapidly. The weather has been seasonable of late. More anon. Respectfully, DELTA.

Weather—Wheat, Oats, Corn—Rust in Oats not a New Disease.

MESARS. EDITORS: Since my last the weather has been as favorable to vegetation as is ever witnessed in this latitude. The soil, previously saturated by superabundant showers, seemed in condition to respond to the sun's quickening power. Every agricultural product has been urged to its most rapid growth, which has made

Farmers, during the last two weeks, have been busily engaged harvesting their wheat which will fall short at least one third of an average crop. The oats crop will be almost a total failure, from the effects of rust. I learn from several correspondents of the Democratic that it is equally severe in Kentucky. Some of the correspondents seem to think that rice in oats is as great a wonder as has ever been introduced to the agriculture of the West. It is something new to me; but the old farmer here say it very often destroys the oats crop in Illinois. As for the corn, what little there is planted looks well; however, it is a pretty close race between the corn and the weeds; and,

I am a thorough bred Kentuckian. I was born and raised in Trimble county, Ky., in the hills of the little Kentucky river, but a few miles distant from the place where the Wusser, the mighty animile, was captured; and during the long period I remained among the hills, I never had the good luck to come in collision with Wusser.

I have no political news to communicate present.

Very respectfully yours, J. M. M.

Crops in Missouri.

POLK COUNTY, MISSOURI, July 10, 1858.

MEASURES. EDITORS: The good people of the country are much alarmed at the country are such a law-abiding people (the newspaper reports of border ruffianism to the contrary notwithstanding), that there are no bloody murders to report; and, consequently, nobody to be hung. It has been two weeks since we had any rain here (an uncommon occurrence for this season), consequently farmers have, generally, got their corn in a very good condition for growing, and it looks better than could be expected.

Wheat has been harvested, and is better than it has been here for several years. This is not a first rate wheat growing county, but the crop would compare favorably with that of some of our more Northern neighbors.

The oats is an entire failure, as there will not be one acre out for every twenty sowed; the

Timothy does well: the meadows are fine and promise in some measure to make up for the loss of the oats crop. The so much talked of hog-cholera has not made its appearance in this part of country, that I have heard. (politics) I cannot say much, as the people appear to have become disgusted with politicians. A

I think a great many have almost come to the conclusion that honest politicians are "angels' visits, few and far between."

Yours, RANDOM.

The Town of Barry and Connections—Crop
BARRY, PIKE CO., ILLS., July 14, '58.

My dear ESQUIRE: Barry is situated about meas. Editors: Barry is about 100 miles northeast of Cincinnati, on the Mississippi river, and about twenty-five miles west of Naples, on the Illinois river. The former place is the point from which our produce generally is shipped for market; the latter is the terminus of the G. W. R. R. The town itself (Barry) is pleasantly situated on the co-

News from the "Purchase."
MILBURN, BALLARD CO., KY.,
July 18, 1888.

Messrs. Editors: Believing that you will be "posted" concerning the commercial and political condition of the "Purchase," I propose myself as the "medium." The "crisis" in this quarter of the purchase are very good, considering the excessive wet season. The corn is well generally and promises nearly an average yield. The crop of wheat will be better than was anticipated before the harvest; but I have not heard of a single instance where oats are worth cutting. The tobacco is suffering severely by "frencing" occasioned from too much rain; still, as the bag is not doing much damage to the plant, it is not so serious.

The hog-cholera, so called, is all the rage and is slaying its thousands; indeed, it is becoming a very serious matter among the farmers. Some thousands of hogs have died, and the epidemic still prevails without abatement, and no remedy can be found.

All the political excitement is of a local nature, as Revill is calmly and quietly making "clear away" in Boyd's District. Our fellow-citizen, W. K. Vance, who has lately taken up his abode in this county, is a candidate for County Judge, and will certainly be elected by a very handsome majority over his known opponent, Mr. Moray. As Southern Kentucky has taken a new start towards settling her very rich and long-neglected lands, she cannot but congratulate herself upon the accession of such sterling gentlemen as Major Vance, who will certainly be an ornament to the county, over whose affairs he is destined to preside.

No more until more is known.

Bloomfield and its Resources.—North Missouri Railroad—Crops—Hinkley, the Peasants, etc.

Bloomfield, Iowa, July 12, '98.

MEANS EDITORS: Thinking a brief history of our county—crops, etc., would not be uninteresting, I send you this communication, which, if of any value, may place in the columns of your excellent paper.

Our county is situated on the southern tier of Iowa, joining Missouri, sixty miles from the Mississippi river, and is as fine an agricultural country as there is in the great West. We have a better proportion of good timber than any other section of Iowa; and our prairies are as rich and lay as beautifully for farming as any prairie in the State. The soil is from two to four feet deep, and very rich. We have an abundance of water—several good streams running through the county, and water can be had by digging at a depth of twenty or thirty feet almost anywhere. We have fine coal beds lying within four feet of the surface, with a vein from four to seven feet thick, and the supply practically inexhaustible.

Our town is one of the best in Iowa, with a population of twelve or fourteen hundred inhabitants. We have four good primary schools, one high school conducted with ability, and a good substantial building, just finished, which is a credit to the place. Our citizens are making arrangements for the erection of two more good school-houses, at a cost of two to three hundred dollars each.

We have everything, almost, but a good flouring mill, which, if erected by an experienced miller, would pay a large percentage on the money invested. Wheat is selling at fifty cents per bushel, and flour at three dollars per hundred pounds—never less than two dollars and fifty cents, and a market at home for all that could be made.

The North Missouri railroad, from St. Louis, will be completed to this place in about eight months. The cars are running one hundred and ten miles already, and the money is on hand to complete the road. It is expected that the first crop of wheat will be sold at a profit of five cents per bushel, and the speed of completion is certain—when we shall have a market right at our doors for all the surplus produce of our farms, and only ten hours distance from St. Louis.

Good farms, improved, can be bought here now at from ten to twenty dollars per acre; and there never was a more favorable time to buy than now. Men who wish to come West, and come now, if they wish to purchase lands before the reaction, which is sure to take place within twelve months. Many farmers have received good prices for their crops, and the hard times will force them to sell at a profit.

The crops, this spring, are not so promising as we would like. The fall wheat is not quite so good as last year, and some fields will not be cut. Oats are scarce, and corn is scarce. We have a very good prospect for corn, considering the wet season. Some say "it has rained thirty-two days in every month this spring."

We have a very fine crop of timothy, and hundreds of acres of Hungarian grass, which is much better than oats. This grass is indeed a reality, and not millet, as some writers say. We have both in this country, and horses will do just as well on the Hungarian grass, as on timothy, and it is much better. It yields three to four tons to the acre, with almost as good second crop, which can be cut out for use for fall pasture. Our farmers raise a great many hogs and cattle, and they have a good market at home. Several thousand hogs are packed in our town every year.

On the 22nd of June we voted on the bank law, which, I think, was almost unanimous for both the State Bank of Iowa and the general banking law.

Hinkley, who has been confined in our jail for more than two years, for poisoning his wife with strychnine, has been convicted, and will be hung on the 11th of August.

Hon. H. H. Trimble is the Democratic candidate for Congress in this district; is a resident of this place; is a gentleman of talent and ability, and, if elected, will be an honor to southern Iowa. Yours, etc., C. B.

A Blackberry Patch in McKee—Oats, Wheat, and Corn

Licking Station, Morgan County, Ky., July 13th, 1898.

MEANS EDITORS: Yesterday morning found me and the wife armed and equipped for the purpose of indulging in the luxury of gathering blackberries in some of the fields that are not far distant. The "glorious king of day roses in the east" (as it does on most important occasions), and off we started, each with tin cup, pen, or bucket, and another vessel, for the purpose of securing as many of these spontaneous productions of the soil as possible. Such a merry time; the thermometer standing at about ninety-five degrees in the shade. The very coolness of the time seemed to have the effect of settling every one to talking, laughing, running, cutting capers, and singing songs, as if we had a desire to get blood up, to show our unsophisticated correspondents the large amount of mountain life and its enjoyment on warm occasions. The ladies, "God bless 'em," looked like new-born roses with dew on them, as the streams of moisture poured from their pink-colored cheeks, and their humble servant felt—yes, he felt—very much that the deliciousness of a whole would be very congenial to his feelings. "When the rounded red sun" was alighting his last rays upon the hill tops, the party broke up for home, their vessels all being full.

Raukin R. Revell, according to appointment, addressed his little "citizens of these parts" on the 23rd of month. There is a large collection of the indomitable Democracy on that occasion. Mr. Revell will be sure to get the usual majorities given Democrats, all through our mountain country, so far as I have heard from. Although, when here, he was very well, he made a very intelligent speech, just such a one as our mountain boys like to hear. After closing his important remarks, he told the audience he had called McKee a Plug Ugly, which he (McKee) had interpreted as a slur upon his good looks, and said he was as handsome as Revell. Revell said, in reply, if his friends thought McKee was a Plug Ugly, they should vote for him. I was talking with one of my American friends, the other day, about letting their beauty decide the race; but he says they are both so ugly, no man can come to a conclusion between now and August which is the best looking.

The farming community of this and adjoining counties have met with a loss of their crop by the rust. So much damage has been done, that of the year's sowing, there will not be enough seed gathered to furnish each farmer with the amount he should put in the ground next spring.

The wheat crop will not begin to compare with the crop last year, from what I can learn, something over a half crop will be the yield. The rust, and smut, did us no damage in comparison to what they have done in other parts of the State, but other causes, which the farmers are unable to explain, produced its shortness.

Corn is looking just as well as need be, and if some insects and unknown plague blights it not, the crop will be as abundant as last year, for all deficiencies from other sources. If any class of individuals should have good luck, it is that class who cultivate the soil. Every other class of society is dependent upon the use of everything that sustains life; and it is unpropitious winds and storms and untimely frosts and midwinters cause failures in that important business. It is impossible for the balance of society to prosper.

Yours, etc.,

(Care of the Louisville Democrat.)

Weather and Tides.

BUTLERVILLE, MO., Ky., July 13th, 1898.

MEANS EDITORS: Since my last the weather has been very dry. We have only occasional showers—just enough to cool the air. Beautiful weather in harvest, and wheat pretty fair. There is some complaint, but I think it owing to the kind of wheat. But little tobacco will live that has been set out during the few weeks past; and the dry weather is bad on the crop previously put out. There is a prospect of some more rain, but I don't think it will be a great deal. I don't think it will be a great deal. I don't think it will be a great deal.

Our candidates are all Democratic in this country. Respectfully yours,
